The Market

The Altai region is the largest cereal producer in the Russian Federation: the total agricultural area of the region is 11.6 million hectares which are situated in seven different climate zones. The main fields of arable farming are cereal cultivation, forage production, oilseed cultivation, horticulture and vegetable growing. In 2018, a third of all Siberian grain was produced in the Altai region - 5.35 million tons. The region accounted for 98% of sunflower seed production in the Siberian administrative district. It is the only region beyond the Urals where sugar beet is grown.

Livestock is also a priority for the agriculture sector of the region. In terms of dairy and beef cattle, the region is among the five largest in the country.

In the region, there are various federal and regional programs to provide support to agricultural producers. The interest of domestic and foreign producers to the region is very high due to its high growth potential and proximity to the countries of Central and Southeast Asia.

The Exhibition and the Forum

The exhibition AgroExpoSiberia experiences a comeback as a traditional platform for professionals of plant production and animal husbandry in the Altai region - the agricultural centre of Siberia.

In 2019, manufacturers and suppliers presented a wide range of technology, new technologies and services in the fields of agricultural machinery, crop cultivation and animal husbandry to 2,060 professionals from regions of Altai, Tomsk, Kemerovo, Novosibirsk, Moscow, Belgorod, and Voronezh. The Forum „Agriculture of Siberia: Present and Future“ with over 15 events took place for the first time during the exhibition.

In 2020, leading companies from Russia and abroad will use this platform to present their products to local farmers and to discuss the most important topics of agriculture during the Forum. Do not miss the opportunity to join them!

The organizers of the exhibition, DLG RUS and IFWexpo Heidelberg GmbH, are subsidiaries of DLG the leading organization of the European agricultural and food sector, as well as the organizer of the world's largest agricultural exhibitions Agritechnica and EuroTier in Hanover, Germany.
